

WELLNESS WEDNESDAY

WASHINGTON ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

SEPTEMBER 5, 2018

Tips For a Healthy School Year

To give your children the best possible start in those busy first few weeks of the school year, take a look at their overall health to get them physically ready to meet all the challenges of a new school year.

1. Getting Enough Zzz's

By far, the most important school health issue for most kids is getting enough sleep - about 10 to 11 hours a night for elementary school-age children. That sounds simple, but the trouble is, it's not always easy to make your child's sleep patterns mesh with their new school schedule.

When parents work late, children's bedtimes often get pushed back to create a window of family time. How can you argue with that? But to make sure your child can make it through the day without dozing at their desk, night-owl families need to start gradually shifting their schedules a few weeks before school starts.

2. Testing Eyes and Ears

You can't expect a child to learn if they're having trouble seeing the blackboard or hearing the teacher. So have your pediatrician screen for vision and hearing problems during your child's back-to-school checkup.

Remember: You can't assume your child has 20/20 vision just because they never complain about not being able to see. Children with vision problems may not realize the world isn't blurry to everybody else. If your child often has headaches, tilts their head to one side to read schoolwork, or holds objects unusually close or far away to view them, it could be a sign that they may have a vision problem.

3. Lunch Time!

You may be planning healthy, well-balanced lunches to pack in your child's shiny new Pokemon lunchbox. Just don't be surprised if those turkey sandwiches and carrot sticks come back untouched. Eating in new surroundings and under tight time constraints can make some children's appetites evaporate.

Don't worry too much if your child only nibbles on lunch at school. Instead, focus on providing a protein-filled breakfast. With a little bit of fat and fiber from complex carbohydrates, your child will be ready to start the day.

4. Bathroom Break

Adjusting to classroom life can be overwhelming for a child who's a little embarrassed about asking to go to the bathroom, and there's nothing more humiliating than an "accident" at school. To help your child avoid any problems, have a talk ahead of time about classroom bathroom rules - taking breaks as scheduled, and raising your hand for permission to leave the room.

5. Scrub-a-Dub-Dub

The first day of school brings new friends, new activities - and a bunch of new germs. That's why good hand-washing habits are critical for school-age children. Children (like adults) need to wash their hands after they go to the bathroom and before they eat.

6. Get Moving

As your child blasts through the backyard like a whirlwind or jumps across the sofa-turned-lava pit, making sure they get enough exercise may seem like the least of your worries. But once children enter school, you can't assume that recess and P.E. are giving her all the daily activity they need to stay healthy and happy.

Kids need 20 to 30 minutes of regular, nonstop exercise a day. P.E. classes and after-school sports may not be enough. Try planning weekly bike rides and nature walks, and your whole family will benefit.

Source: Parenting.com

Blue Zones Recipe of the Week

Pineapple Cucumber Salad

This bright summer salad recipe is simple and takes less than five minutes to throw together, but it's full of juicy flavor that makes for a perfect side dish for your barbecues this season. Pineapple and cucumber tie together perfectly with a punch of lime juice and a bunch of fresh cilantro.

CLICK HERE

To keep the body in good health is a duty... otherwise we shall not be able to keep our mind strong and clear.

-Buddha

Upcoming Events in the Community

LA Kings Beach Cities 5k/10k
9.8.18
7:00AM-12:00PM

Run, glide, skip or skate your way through downtown shops and restaurants, past beach homes and the sparkling ocean water to the start of training camp. LA Kings players, Bailey, Ice Crew and more will be there...not to mention the event's esteemed host, Daryl Evans!

Poetry Workshop
9.8.18
10:30AM-12:30PM
Redondo Beach Main Library

CLICK HERE FOR MORE INFORMATION

16th Annual Chalk Art Festival on The Redondo Pier
9.8.18
12:00PM-4:00PM

Enjoy a day with your family, friends and community and help transform the Redondo Beach Pier into a work of art!