NHS Classes Participate in Día de los Muertos

Over 100 Nampa High students from Drawing and Painting 1 & 2 and Spanish 3 & 4 will participate in the Día de los Muertos Steamroller Print Project hosted by JUMP in Boise. Each student has selected an ancestor to remember for this unique project. Drawing 1 students are creating 2ftx2ft relief print images while Spanish 3 students are writing funny obituaries. Drawing 2 and Spanish 4 students are collaborating to develop original Spanish Legends and a 2ftx8ft relief print illustrating that legend. All images will be printed at JUMP on October 20th from 9:00-1:00. This is a free event, and all community members are encouraged to attend. Finally, students' work will be on display at JUMP during First Thursday on November 1st from 4:00-9:00, as well as in downtown Nampa at Flying M and Puffy Mondaes.

Day of the Dead or Dia de Muertos is truly a celebration of life. This event is to remind us to live ours to the fullest and remember our passed loved ones with joy. Come join us for this FREE community event brought to you by JUMP and The Consulate of Mexico to enjoy art, performances and learn more about this vibrant Latin American holiday.

FCCLA Summer National Comp Results

The FCCLA National Conference and Competition in Atlanta, Georgia was a fun success this summer. It is exciting to share that Emma Casebolt and Kendall Smith were awarded Gold for their Advocacy Competition piece. They were able to successfully present their work on Let It Flow Idaho and their campaign for tax exemption on feminine hygiene products and awareness of the need for donations to community pantries, including our NHS pantry. Maddy Casebolt received a Silver for her work on Men in Childcare, and Felicia Walker received a Bronze for her work on Life Books in the foster care system.

Upward Bound Visits CWI

As an Upward Bound Specialist for over four years, I am embarrassed to admit I have never toured College of Idaho. Since none of my students at Nampa High School had toured it either, we decided we all needed a trip to see our local college, which is only twenty minutes away. The day started with a tour of the campus and the beautiful new library that has glass outer walls and inner white board walls. We then heard from the admissions office about their PEAK program where students can pick one major and three minors. Lunch was one of the best college dining experiences I've had because who doesn't love bacon burgers, seafood chowder, and ice cream? We then played games to learn everyone's names and connect with the students who are in other class sections. Finally, Jim Everett, the college's co-president, met with us in their performing arts hall. He reminded students about the platinum rule and inspired us all to keep persevering towards our dreams. It was a wonderful day of learning, laughing, and being reminded that everyone is important. Thank you College of Idaho!

★ Parents: Please remember to call our attendance office at 208-498-0552 at least 30 minutes prior to getting your students out of school for any appointments, etc. This gives us time to locate them and check them out at the office before you need them to leave.

Students Make Dog Treats to Sell

The students and staff in Mr. LaFord's classroom are busy making dog treats to raise funds for class field trips. We have tested them on some of our canine friends and they have proven to be a hit! If you would like to order some for your canine companions, please contact Mr. LaFord at ALaFord@nsd131.org or Mickey Rosling at mrosling@nsd131.org.

New NHS Counselor

Nampa High is pleased to welcome and introduce the newest member of our counseling team, Mrs. Kacie Noyes (spelled like "no"+"yes" but pronounced "noise," like a sound). Mrs. Noyes comes to us from Payette High School, and she graduated from Indiana University in Fort Wayne. She is the counselor for students with the last name L-Q and can be reached at knoyes@nsd131.org or 208-498-0551, ext. 6709.
