

Pleasanton Unified School District

March 23, 2020

Hello, Lydiksen families -

I am hoping all of you and your families are doing well at this time. Although we have not seen students on our school campus in more than 10 days, teachers and staff have been busy getting ready to continue student learning online for the next two weeks.

Teachers participated in online webinars and professional development, created websites and digital learning platforms, and communicated and collaborated through many virtual meetings last week. Considering that much of this technology is new to our teachers and staff, we feel ready to begin student learning today with our almost 700 Lydiksen students.

Teachers will regularly be communicating with students and their families using email, websites, and other digital tools. However, if you have questions about the online learning for your child, reach out to your child's teacher for guidance.

Please know that although your students will be experiencing some wonderful learning opportunities, this will not necessarily replicate the daily educational experience your child is used to. Teachers have scheduled a variety of activities - both independent and interactive - for your child during these two weeks, but there are sure to be challenges with continuing the learning from your homes. We appreciate your flexibility and patience.

Although we hope to see everyone back at Lydiksen after spring break ends in April, we all know that the current plan may change, much like many of the circumstances in our lives during the past few weeks. Pleasanton Unified school students will only return to school campuses once it has been determined to be the safe places to learn that they always have been.

The Lydiksen staff is excited for the opportunity to continue your child's education online. Thanks for your help and support during this time, and stay well.
