Ruma (Nepal)

There are 21 varieties of venomous snakes in Nepal including the hooded Indian Cobra and the aggressive Pit Viper. Ruma had a tragic encounter with such a snake. The venom began to spread but she lived in a remote village and didn't get the care she needed. The venom destroyed the flesh of her leg and they had to amputate. This 21-year-old can no longer tend her vegetable garden or go to her classes at the local university.

BUT because of the Hope Disability Centre and We Help Two, she was given a new prosthetic leg. She already has got the hang of it and is back to working her garden and is back at school. She is grateful for those who made it possible.
