To All Our Friends and Families of The Master’s School,

We are in the midst of a very emotional and turbulent time across our nation. It is painful on so many fronts. I wish I had immediate answers and solutions. But at this time, it is essential that our community of The Master’s School understands our position as we pray for unity, healing, and improved justice in our country.

We, The Master’s School, stand in solidarity with the black community and share our commitment to fight hatred and injustice in every city and suburb across America. As the country mourns the senseless killings of George Floyd and a list of many others, we are reminded of how much work still needs to be done as a nation. We want the United States to have the highest standards of freedom, equality, and justice for all citizens. As a school community, we are saddened and sickened by the continued violence in our country.

Please join me in praying for unity and healing for our nation, wisdom for our leaders, and that we, as citizens, be advocates for and examples of positive change in attitude, word, and deed. The beginning of true equality and justice starts with each of us.

Serving with you,

Ray Lagan
