National Slavery and Human Trafficking Prevention Month

By Presidential Proclamation, January is National Slavery and Human Trafficking Prevention Month. You can take a stand against human trafficking by committing yourself to the fight to end all forms of it in the United States. Some signs to help you recognize human trafficking are: The person appears disconnected from family, friends, and community organizations. He has a sudden or dramatic change in behavior. She has bruises in various stages of healing. He is fearful, timid, or submissive. She shows signs of having been denied food, water, sleep, or medical care. He doesn't have freedom of movement or can't freely leave where he lives. If you see some of these signs, please report it to a responsible adult.
