

New Jersey Department of Education
Office of Charter and Renaissance Schools

College Achieve Central Charter School Annual Report

Updated April 2018
Submitted August 1, 2018

Introduction:

The annual report was established in the Charter School Program Act of 1995 as a way to facilitate the commissioner's annual review of charter schools. It is aligned to the Performance Framework developed by the Office of Charter and Renaissance Schools, New Jersey Department of Education (Department), and meant to capture information that allows the Department to easily evaluate a charter school's performance based on the criteria set forth in the Performance Framework.

Annual Report Submission Guidelines:

Annual Report Submission: Each year per N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-16(b) and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-2.2(a), the board of trustees of a charter school must submit the annual report no later than 4:15 p.m. on August 1 to: the district board(s) of education or state district superintendent, the executive county superintendent, and the commissioner of education. Further, the board of trustees must make the annual report available to the parents or guardians of the students enrolled in the charter school.

New this year, each charter school's annual report will be made available for download on the Department's website.

Submission Process for the 2017-18 Report: This year, the annual report must be submitted via SharePoint as a Word document titled "Annual Report 2018." To submit the report, upload it to the subfolder "Annual Report 2018" located inside the folder "Annual Report" on the charter school's SharePoint site. Each Appendix must be saved as a separate Word or .PDF document using the file naming convention found at the end of the document and then uploaded to the "Annual Report 2018" subfolder on the charter school's SharePoint site.

Additional Submission Requirements: A paper copy of the report must be submitted to the district board(s) of education or state district superintendent of the charter school's district(s) of residence no later than 4:15 p.m. on Wednesday, August 1, 2018. The paper copies require a cover page, which includes the school's name and the date of the report. Paper copies are not required to be sent to the executive county superintendent.

Written Comment Period: The board(s) of education or state district superintendent of the district(s) of residence of a charter school may submit comments regarding the charter school's annual report to the commissioner no later than October 1, 2018.

Organizational Performance Areas

The following questions are aligned to the Organizational Performance Framework, Performance Area 1: Education Program and Capacity.

1.1 Mission and Key Design Elements

- a) State the school's mission.

The mission of College Achieve Central Charter School (CACCS) is to prepare all of its students to excel in and graduate from the top colleges and universities in the nation.

We intend to accomplish this through a highly rigorous, proven curriculum and a focus on writing and higher order thinking skills. We believe that a student's success in early grades is the foundation for his or her success in high school and college. As a result, we invest heavily in our students in the early years through small-group instruction, more time on task, and by placing more than one teacher in a classroom. We believe there is a knowledge gap in elementary school in science and history that undermines the success of low-income and minority students on the Advanced Placement (AP) exams and in college graduation rates. We will use a longer school day and after school and summer programs to close the knowledge gap in the sciences and history, and offer our students an articulated writing program from grades K-12 that ensures cohesion and building off of a solid foundation. In high school, our students will build upon their early foundation by completing a rigorous and challenging college-prep and AP curriculum. We will expect every student to take three AP classes and exams prior to graduation. This rigorous approach to education will equip our students with the skills, knowledge, and work ethic they need to be successful in the nation's top colleges and universities.

- b) Provide a brief description of the school's key design elements.

1. GRACE:

- Grit: The tendency to sustain interest in and effort toward very long-term goals. Trying hard even when you know you are going to struggle and fail again and again. Never giving up.
- Resiliency: The ability to overcome failure, disappointment, setbacks, and loss.
- Agency: owning your life and the decisions you make that determine your path.
- Character: Doing the right thing even when no one else is watching. Doing the right thing even when you know you will suffer for it. Becoming a person of integrity, compassion, and purpose.
- Excellence: The urge to find a way to do a thing perhaps better than it has ever been done before, or doing it the best way it can possibly be done.

2. A rigorous, standards based instructional program that is backwards mapped from college standards and teaches our students how to think for themselves.

3. Elementary School: Systemic Phonics, the Common Core & the Core Knowledge Sequence
4. Data-driven assessment & instruction data reporting to ensure teachers understand student progress.
5. Shared Inquiry: Socratic Seminars
6. College Achieves' Approach to teaching the Toulmin College Writing Model (Grades 5-12)
7. More Time for Learning & Science
8. Pacing for Rigorous Instruction
9. Apprentice Teacher Pipeline & High Dosage Tutoring
10. MAADNESS: Music, Art, Athletics, Drama & Dance
11. SOAL: Summer Of A Lifetime (SOAL) and Travel Study Programs

c) If applicable, provide information regarding the school's unique academic goals related to the school's mission using the guidelines and format below. Note: Mission-specific goals are optional. Schools that do not have mission-specific academic goals may leave this section of the annual report blank. Further, these academic goals may have changed from the school's original charter application.

Guidelines

- All goals must be SMART, e.g. specific, measurable, ambitious and attainable, relevant and time-bound.
- All measurements must be valid and reliable, and must demonstrate rigor.
- Without exception, academic goals must be outcome-driven.
- Explain why the school has or has not met these goals, and what steps the school has taken to ensure progress.

Table 3: Format

Goal	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● To show growth in closing the achievement gap between our students and the New Jersey State average. New Jersey is one of the highest performing states in the union - typically in the top 5 of all 50 states and Washington DC.
Measure	PARCC Scores
Target	To improve by at least 20% or 5 percentage points a year until the gap is close.
Actual Outcome	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● In ELA only in 5th and 6th Grade do we have three years of data. In those grades, student achievement in ELA increased remarkably from 26% proficient and advanced to 35.90% in 5th Grade reading scores - an increase of 38% in 3 years. ● In 6th grade, ELA scores went up from year 1 to year 2 from 29.2% to 38.4% - an increase of 31.5% in one year. In year 3 however, the scores declined. ● In math, only 5th and 6th grades have three years of data. In those grades,

	student achievement in math declined in the 5th grade from year 1 to year 2 from 13.7% proficient and advanced to just 7% in year 2. However, in year three, the scores more than tripled to 21.50% proficient and advanced.
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In our first year of offering Algebra, only 8.5% of students scored proficient or advance which outperformed Plainfield School District. While admittedly low, however, 54.2% scored Approaching (the 3rd Quintile) which tripled the results of our host school district with 17.4% Approaching in 2017. Further, only 2.8 of our students scored in the bottom quintile vs. 37.8% of Plainfield students in the bottom quintile.

1.2 Curriculum

- a) All charter schools are required to adopt and implement curriculum aligned to the New Jersey Student Learning Standards. To affirm the charter school’s commitment to this requirement, complete and submit Appendix A, available at the end of this document.

1.3 Instruction

- a) What constitutes high quality instruction at this school?
 - Our teachers utilize a mix of instructional strategies to ensure that all of our students will attain high levels of academic achievement. All teachers will embrace a rigorous, fast-paced teaching style. Various instructional methods, including direct instruction, Socratic seminars, in-class writing using the Toulmin writing model, whole class and small group discussion, and teacher coaching.
 - A rigorous, fast-paced teaching style- Our teachers pace instruction at the level at which the top quartile in the class has to work hard to achieve an A. We gauge the level of difficulty to which we are teaching through a combination of recommendations from the textbook, data gleaned from formative assessments and interim assessments, and teacher consensus. One way teachers know the work is at the appropriate level of difficulty is if the majority of the students struggle to achieve a B or a C the first time they are assessed. This rigor and pacing is well suited to the population we anticipate serving.

- b) Provide a brief description of the school’s instructional practices.
 - The right combination of instructional methods are essential -Inquiry-based learning, where students learn by posing questions and working through scenarios, reinforced with direct instruction, Socratic seminars, and Toulmin writing, drives our overall model. We have structured our units and lesson plans so that questioning and discussion leads to high-level reasoning, and high-level reasoning leads to thoughtful and logical writing closely grounded in the text.
 - Direct instruction (15-30% of teaching time): Direct instruction is an important and necessary part of inquiry-based learning. Direct instruction refers to the approach when content and information is structured and delivered to students by teachers. This delivery can happen in a wide variety of ways, including teacher lectures, students reading a text, or students watching a video or demonstration. A critical component of many lessons, direct instruction is likely to be the most utilized method across our curriculum.

- Socratic seminars (15-20% of teaching time): The Socratic method of teaching engages students in dialogue, encouraging them to think critically about content and ideas instead of simply looking for the “right” answer. Teachers respond to students’ comments and queries with a series of probing questions designed to facilitate broader and deeper understanding. In the classroom, students are given opportunities to "examine" a common piece of text, whether it is in the form of a novel, poem, art print, piece of music, historical debate, mathematical problem, or scientific formula. After review of a common text or problem, the teacher poses open-ended questions. Open-ended questions will allow students to think critically, analyze multiple meanings in text, and express ideas with clarity and confidence. The dialogue created through this process will encourage students to think deeply and to become more critical readers of text.
- Toulmin writing model (15-20% of teaching time): The Toulmin writing model teaches students to make a claim, define the issue in the claim, support the claim with evidence, explain how the evidence supports that claim, and finally consider and engage with any possible counter-claims. This is a high level of thinking and writing that requires students to have read, understood, and engaged deeply with a text prior to making an argument and writing a persuasive essay.
- Whole- and small-group discussion (15-20% of teaching time): When students are asked to communicate with their peers, they learn to organize their thoughts and naturally reflect on their own ideas, gaining further insight into the topic at hand. When students listen to their peers, they learn to engage multiple points of view, consider contradictory ideas, and engage in healthy discussions. All of this leads to deeper understanding of content, and higher and more complex levels of thinking – which is exactly what we want our students to develop.
- Teacher coaching (15-20% of teaching time): Teachers will work one-on-one or will small groups as needed to remediate or accelerate learning as needed.

1.4 Assessment

- a) Fill in the following table to show year over year trends in the proportion of students meeting or exceeding grade-level expectations (“proficiency rate”) on all PARCC assessments administered by the school. Note: If 2017-18 PARCC results have not been released to schools by July 15, 2018, then leave the 2017-18 column blank.

Table 4: Proficiency Rates on PARCC assessments

Assessment	2015-16	2016-17	2017-18

Algebra II	N/A	N/A	N/A

- b) Explain the main reasons why the school has or has not seen year over year increases in the proficiency rate, and what steps the school has taken, or plans to take, to ensure such progress in both subjects by grade level and by subgroup (i.e., students eligible for free and reduced price lunch, English language learners, students with disabilities, and racial/ethnic groups).

The school has experienced impressive growth in grades 4, 5, and 7 in ELA for the 2017-2018 School year and in grades 4 and 5 in math. We attribute the growth to three factors: one, the quality and training of the teachers and their ability to implement our instructional model; two, the level of rigor of the curriculum; and three, the continuity of instruction. This past year, we actually tripled the math scores in 5th grade from 7% proficient to over 21% proficient. In English Language Arts, we had tremendous growth in 4th grade with 39.3% proficient or advanced, and in the 5th grade we increased from 22.8% proficient or advanced to 35.9%. Also, in 7th grade, the proficiency rate went up from 34.3% to 37.8% in ELA.

In the grades where we declined, we attribute the lack of growth to one or more of three factors: one, the quality and training of the teacher and their ability to implement our instructional model; two, the level of rigor of the curriculum; and three, the continuity of instruction. The 6th grade ELA and Math scores also declined. This we attribute however, to the strength of the previous 6th graders who did comparatively much better. This year's 6th graders actually almost doubled their math scores from 7% proficient in math the previous year to 13.6% in 6th grade. All of these challenges have been addressed for the coming school year.

- c) For each subject and grade level, provide a list of the diagnostic, formative, and summative assessments that were administered during the 2017-2018 year.
 - i. Interim assessments - Using software program such as Classworks and ANET, teachers were able to create shared grade-level and discipline assessments that provide detailed information on exactly which objectives the students have or have not met. Common Core and our rigorous college prep curriculum set the standards for each assessment. A key part of our teachers' collaborative time is be assessing data and planning based on data. Interim assessments enable this practice. Data helps inform which students the apprentice teacher will work with in small groups to accelerate learning.
 - ii. Curriculum-aligned assessments – Our course offerings are driven by Common Core, state and district requirements, and college entrance requirements. Middle school teachers work as a team to create the benchmarks in each department, set pacing guidelines, and track student progress against the benchmarks. Teachers administer end-of- unit assessments; what is not learned is re-taught until students learn the essential skill or content.
 - iii. Writing Assessments - College Achieve students complete writing benchmarks to ensure that writing instruction and expectations are consistent throughout each grade level during the entire school year. These benchmarks are given at least three times a year using prompts that cover three writing genres: narrative, persuasive, and expository. Teachers create an organize easily accessible writing portfolio for each student that will follow them throughout grade levels.

- d) Describe how results from the assessments listed above were used to improve instructional effectiveness and student learning.
 - The data cycle outlined below was implemented to ensure all key stakeholders are involved in the development and implementation of assessment tools and the analysis of assessment results to improve instruction. In addition, the principal was responsible for sharing data routinely, in the form of a dashboard, with the school's board of trustees.

- b) What were the three main positive aspects identified by parents/guardians in the latest survey?
 - i. Staff members work hard to maintain positive relations with parents and welcomes their participation
 - ii. Scholars' progress is regularly and systemically assessed, evaluated and communicated to parents
 - iii. The school has a positive climate
- c) What were the three main challenges identified by parents/guardians in the latest survey?
 - i. Better communication
 - ii. The school is meeting the scholars' need in developing reading, writing and math skills
 - iii. Assessment information is regularly communicated to scholars and parents
- d) List and briefly describe the major activities or events the school offered to parents/guardians during the 2017-18 school year.
 - i. multiple showcases (holidays, black history, hispanic heritage)
 - ii. college career week: parents and local community members came in to share their careers with students
 - iii. Food drives, coat drives, toy drives
- e) List and briefly describe the major activities or events conducted by parents/guardians to further the school's mission and goals.
 - i. girls with vision
 - ii. art events
- f) Fill in the requested information below regarding community involvement. Add or delete rows as necessary.

5.1 Compliance

The following questions are aligned to the Organizational Performance Framework, Performance Area 5: Compliance.

- a) Provide a description of the educator evaluation system the school has implemented.
- College Achieve uses a teacher evaluation model developed by ICEF Public Schools as part of ICEF's partnership with The College Ready Promise (TCRP). This model is based on the Danielson Framework for teacher evaluation.

Through robust implementation of the model the school will create three powerful levers to improve student academic performance and establish a community of learning and a culture of high expectations. The three levers are: 1) school-wide adoption of effective teaching practices; 2) the use of data to create accountability for student learning; and 3) the use of data, observation, and good coaching to improve an individual teacher's practice.

Each teacher will receive a scored evaluation based on the following:

- 1) Adoption of school-wide domains - 25 points
- 2) Data and student performance - 25 points
- 3) Use of data, observation, and coaching to improve teacher practice - 50 points

As the improvement of teacher practice is the primary purpose of the evaluation model, we have assigned half the points to the improvement of teacher practice.

Adoption of School Wide Domains - The school staff will agree early in the year on two domains to be the school-wide areas of concentration. These domains will be translated into consistent instruction across classrooms for the benefit of all students. Teachers will be evaluated on how closely they adhere to the school's overall instructional program. In trying to implement, for instance, a writing model across all disciplines, an evaluation system focused on specified domains is necessary to hold all teachers accountable to its implementation. In this way, the evaluation is a lever for aligning the instructional approach across the school.

Data and Student Performance -The second lever in the evaluation process is focused on the academic performance of individual students based on interim assessments, test data, portfolios, and grades. It seeks to make data on student performance a key factor in defining teacher success. Teachers will be held accountable for the academic success of their students, and the principal will be held accountable for the academic success of the school as a whole.

Use of Data, Observation, and Coaching to Improve Teacher Practice - The third lever is the use of evaluations to improve a teacher's craft. Through formal and informal classroom observations, an instructional leader will offer feedback that is both actionable and an opportunity for reflection. Much of our evaluation system calls for training our principals and other instructional leaders to effectively coach, model, demonstrate, and train. Additionally, individual teachers are asked to take ownership of the evaluation model by proposing a third domain, beyond the two school-wide domains, on which they would like to be evaluated.

The process specifically calls for formal observations that occur at least once per semester, while informal observations should occur at minimum once per month. Formal observations are scheduled at least one week in advance and include a pre- and post-observation conference. Informal observations are not typically scheduled, and it is understood that the observer needs to stay only as long enough as necessary to gather enough evidence to provide adequate feedback to the teacher.

By focusing school-wide performance goals on two domains we are streamlining our evaluation process and offering our teachers concentrated, intentional professional development through which we will build a highly effective teaching staff. We will endeavor each year to do a few things well, and each year, the effectiveness of our faculty will grow.

- b) Provide a description of the school leader evaluation system that the school has implemented. uses a leadership evaluation model developed by New Leaders. In partnership with America Achieves, New Leaders developed a model principal evaluation rubric that supports continuous development and meaningful school improvement.

Overview of the Process

The principal evaluation process is intended to be a cycle of continuous improvement, with principals playing a more active, engaged role in their own professional growth and development. The process begins with data analysis, self-reflection and goal setting for the school year to set the stage for implementing a goal-driven plan. Throughout the school year, the plan is implemented and evidence is collected. The cycle continues with a optional mid-year formative review, followed by continued implementation. The latter part of the process offers principals a chance to formally self-assess, review interim data and reflect on progress to date, a step that ultimately informs the summative evaluation. Evidence from the summative evaluation and self-assessment become important sources of information for the principal's subsequent goal setting, as the cycle continues into the following school year.

Data Analysis and Ongoing Self-Reflection:

To begin the continuous improvement process, the principal:

- Has received and reviewed clear guidelines on the components of the evaluation and the evaluation process
- Reviews, analyzes and reflects on all available student learning data and feedback about their leadership practices (including stakeholder feedback) to identify areas of strength and areas needing improvement
- Reviews the superintendent's student learning priorities for the year

Goal-Setting and Strategic Planning:

Next, the principal identifies the specific learning priorities for their school and develops a strategic school plan. More specifically, the principal:

- Develops a strategic school plan in collaboration with other stakeholders that includes relevant, clear student learning priorities that are supported by data.

- Develops their evaluation plan by identifying 2 to 3 priority areas for growth in their leadership practice that are aligned to their student learning priorities
- Discusses their student learning targets and professional growth priorities with their evaluator
- Reaches agreement with their evaluator on a detailed evaluation plan to track their progress throughout the year. This plan should include a schedule for regular observations, evidence collection, feedback and supports throughout the year.

Ongoing Plan Implementation and Evidence Collection:

As the principal implements the plan, he/she and the evaluator both collect evidence about the principal's practice. Evidence of principal practice comes in many forms and, when reviewed together, provides a comprehensive view of principal practice. Evidence is collected through direct and indirect observations of principal practice, artifacts, and school data. High-quality sources for evidence of principal practice include observations of leadership team or teacher team meetings, principal conversations with staff, students, and families, and artifacts of data analysis with the associated plans for response.

Unlike visiting a classroom to observe a teacher, school visits to observe principal practice can vary significantly in length and setting.

Mid-Year Formative Review (optional):

Midway through the school year, when interim student assessment data are available for review, is an ideal time for a formal check-in between the principal and evaluator to review progress. In preparation for this check-in,

- The principal analyzes available student achievement data and considers progress toward student learning priorities.
- The principal reflects on the indicators of leadership practice selected as priority areas and determines whether their growth is on track or not.
- The evaluator reviews evidence from the principal and evidence collected during observations, including feedback to the principal, to identify key themes for discussion.

The principal and evaluator hold a mid-year formative conference, with explicit discussion of progress toward student learning priorities, as well as growth in the leadership practice priority areas. The conference is also an opportunity to discuss any changes in the context (e.g., a large influx of new students) that would support a shift in student learning priorities. At the conclusion of this mid-year conference, the evaluator provides formal feedback to the principal.

Formal Self-Assessment:

In the spring, the principal assess their leadership practice in relation to the New Leaders Evaluation Standards. Specifically, the principal:

- Reviews all available evidence including student data and evaluator and stakeholder feedback
- Assigns a self-rating for each standard, identifying areas of strength and growth

The self-assessment informs the evaluator’s summative evaluation rating of the principal and lays the groundwork for the next year’s continuous improvement process.

Summative Evaluation Rating:

At the end of the year, the evaluator assigns a summative rating.

Specifically, the evaluator:

- Reviews the principal’s self-assessment and all evidence collected over the course of the year and comes to a practice rating
- Meets with the principal to convey strengths, growth areas, the practice rating with written evidence to support the rating for each standard, and a probable overall rating
- Assigns a rating based on all available evidence and shares that rating with the principal (see next section for rating methodology).

- c) As Appendix E, provide a board resolution approving the teacher and school leader evaluation systems.
