Re: All or Nothing Bids

10/29/2018

Q: Do bidders have the option to submit pricing as an "all or nothing" bid? We have concern that winning only a small number of items would make difficult the proper support of your business.

A: Bid specifications reserve the right for the District to make an award under an all-or-nothing approach, but do not afford bidders the same privilege. While not necessarily the primary driver behind such an award determination, the District is aware of difficulties that may arise should such condition occur that you describe. The District will not alter the specifications as set forth with respect to the all-or-nothing approach, but is cognizant of the possibility that the approach may be required in making an award.
