

SUBMITTED PHOTO Addison Independent

Army Trail third-graders at Village Hall

Army Trail School 3rd graders were the most recent student visitors at Addison Village Hall and Addison Public Library. The students visited with Mayor Rich Veenstra where they asked a number of questions and learned about village government before posing for a group shot on the east stairs of Village Hall. Their second stop was at the library where they toured all three floors of the building and spent some time working on a Halloween craft. Students will have the opportunity to tour Addison Historical Museum and Century House in spring when they've scheduled another walking field trip.

Army Trail third-graders at Village Hall

Army Trail School 3rd graders were the most recent student visitors at Addison Village Hall and Addison Public Library. The students visited with Mayor Rich Veenstra where they asked a number of questions and learned about village government before posing for a group shot on the east stairs of Village Hall. Their second stop was at the library where they toured all three floors of the building and spent some time working on a Halloween craft. Students will have the opportunity to tour Addison Historical Museum and Century House in spring when they've scheduled another walking field trip.

Right: Mayor Rich Veenstra gets a big hug from one of the third graders from Army Trail School when the class visited Addison Village Hall to learn more about local government.

SUBMITTED PHOTOS Addison Independent

These students from Army Trail School show off the craft projects they made during their recent visit to Addison Village Hall, the Historical Museum and Century House.