Week Two (March 23-27, 2020) Remote Learning

This past week, our staff has diligently worked to develop and implement engaging and meaningful lessons, and our students have risen to the challenge and tackled their academic work with thoughtfulness, all while simultaneously adapting to the world of virtual learning.

As such, beginning this week, we will be encouraging teachers to utilize certain days as “catch-up” days, allowing time for students to finish long-term assignments, and teachers the opportunity to gauge student progress and comprehension in order to better prepare their next unit of instruction. Also, because we understand that parents and students alike may have been prioritizing students’ core subject areas during this uncertain time, catch up days will also provide students the opportunity to catch up on the specials area content that they may have missed. This will also provide an opportunity for students to create a plan for maintaining their commitments to all subjects as we continue with virtual learning, as this method of schooling is likely to continue for some time.

During the “catch-up” days, all of our teachers will continue to be available to meet with and clarify any lesson or assignment with students and parents.

Our first catch up day will be Friday, March 27th, followed by Wednesday April 8th. Following Spring Break, catch up days will follow an every-other Friday model.
