

SPOTLIGHT

Ardmore City Schools

Spelling Bee Winners

A M S

Ashriel Charles & Sutoria Carter.
Competitors & friends.

Black History Month - Through their Eyes

Students in Zack Birth's classes were given a local history lesson last school year. You may remember seeing something about it on our Facebook page. The topic? What was it like growing up in Ardmore during segregation & the transition from Douglass High School to Ardmore High School during desegregation. Giving this history lesson were three people very dear to Ardmore City Schools: TC Varner, Debra Kaye Johnson, & Dorothy Varner. This assembly along with individual interviews were used to create a video that will be used each year to tell this amazing story from these three amazing people. A big thank you to Harry Spring and First National Bank and Trust Company of Ardmore in helping to fund this video project.

On February 1st, you too can watch this amazing story from our local historians. We will have it available on our website for the month of February.
www.ardmoreschools.org

Feature of the Week

Once a Tiger...

AHS 1997 grad, Mautra Staley Jones was the guest speaker at the Martin Luther King Celebration at the HFV Wilson Community Center on Monday. Mautra is Vice President of Institutional Advancement & External Affairs at Langston University. Pictured with Mautra are two of our outstanding educators, Chauvin Aaron and Mary "the Fox" Johnson.

Native American Culture

3rd Grade students at Lincoln this week had some special visitors, all a part of the Native American Culture Program. These students are learning some Native American words.

*Where are they now
Wednesdays on Facebook.*

Who could be next????

Jefferson Art Projects Underway!

This young lady from Jefferson Elementary has been working on an her art project. Looks fantastic.

ACS at OkMEA

Ardmore City Schools was well represented last week at the Oklahoma Music Educators Association Conference in Tulsa. AHS students Paige Wilkins and Cassie Anandel performed with the All-State Mixed Choir and AMS student Hannah Roberts performed with the All-State Children's Chorus.