

ASU's American Dream Academy is returning to Miami High

ADA is an eight-week program teaching students and parents how to succeed in applying for college, how to pay for it, and how to succeed once you get there. While ADA is an ASU program, the information applies equally to all colleges and universities.

We held ADA last year for the first time, and saw a significant increase in the number of students applying for college, in the number of scholarship applications and awards, and in the number of kids actually starting classes this month. Students who complete the program receive a letter of recommendation from ASU President Michael Crow.

ADA will meet at MHS each Tuesday evening from 6-8 pm, beginning Tuesday 11 September.

Students and families from the entire community are invited, Vandals and otherwise. The program is free, supported by a High School Health & Wellness Grant from the Governor's Office on Youth, Faith & Family.
