National Bullying Prevention Month is a campaign in the United States founded in 2006. The campaign is held during the month of October and unites communities nationwide to educate and raise awareness of bullying prevention. National Bullying Prevention Month is recognized in communities across the United States, with hundreds of schools and organizations signing on as partners.

What is bullying? In order to be considered bullying, the behavior must be aggressive and include:

An Imbalance of Power: Kids who bully use their power—such as physical strength, access to embarrassing information, or popularity—to control or harm others.

Repetition: Bullying behaviors are ongoing over multiple occasions.

How can you help? If you see someone who is treating someone inappropriately, talk to the student to see how you can help. Talk to a trusted adult to help support you. For more information, see the school counselors or administration.
