Award-Winning MKHS Aztec Singers Showcase Talent in Spring Concert

by Elizabeth An

May 10, 2019, Alhambra, CA — In their May spring school concert, “As I Am,” the award-winning MKHS show choir, Aztec Singers, displayed their dexterous talents in a performance that moved from classical music to modern pop songs.

Brianna Avila, vice president of Aztec Singers, performed her song, “I Don’t Wanna Grow Up.” She says, “I wrote this song when I was stressed by growing up too fast. The Aztec Singers helped me — I don’t know what I would do without them.”

The Aztec Singers concert included “Feel It Still” for which they won 2nd in the 2019 Southern California Vocal Association Show Choir Competition in the Mixed Novice Division. The only self-funded show choir club in Southern California, Aztec Singers compete against school-funded show choirs.

“I’m proud of our students’ accomplishments. We are grateful for the outpouring of club support in donations, time, and bookings from parents, alumni and the community for Aztec Singers. This level of active support is testament to the power of arts education,” says Elizabeth An, Aztec Singers advisor and MKHS CTE counselor, “The ARTS Advance AUSD.”

Aztec Singers recently performed for Congresswoman Judy Chu’s 10th Annual Congressional Art Competition at Huntington Library. Contact Elizabeth An at an_elizabeth@ausd.us for information.
