

RUDOLF STEINER SCHOOL OF ANN ARBOR

PRESENTS

DO GOOD ~~OR~~ AND PROFIT?

Join us for an evening with Steiner parent and BIGGBY® COFFEE Co-CEO Mike McFall, Conscious Capitalism Guru Nathan Havey (Thrive Consulting), and Rudolf Steiner School's own Siân Owen-Cruise, as we learn why being conscious matters; As it relates to business, education and organizational management, and how BIGGBY® COFFEE is shooting for the moon!

October 17th • 7pm

Rudolf Steiner High School • 2230 Pontiac Trail, Ann Arbor, MI 48105

Mike McFall

Born and raised in Michigan, Mike graduated from Milford High School and continued his studies at Kalamazoo College. After circumnavigating the globe in high school, a study abroad experience in Sierra Leone, West Africa and four varsity letters in golf, Mike graduated with a degree in Economics. His journey with BIGGBY® COFFEE started at the original store in East Lansing in 1996 as a minimum wage barista. Twenty-two years later, with business partner Bob Fish they have created one of the great specialty coffee brands in America. In his personal life, Mike is married to his beautiful wife Elizaveta and together they are raising three wonderful children, Lee (12), Klava (11), and Oscar (2). They currently reside in Ann Arbor, MI.

Nathan Havey

Nathan Havey is the Founding Partner of Thrive Consulting Group, and an advisor and frequent contributor to Conscious Company Media. In his consulting and speaking, Nathan trains leadership teams across the country to leverage ideas like conscious capitalism for business performance and social impact. The Thrive team is also the driving force behind Sum and Substance, a powerful event sharing stories of purpose at work. Sum and Substance has wowed audiences in 14 cities and counting, and is now being used by companies like Marriott and Salesforce to help build high performing cultures that are also great for people.

Siân Owen-Cruise

Holding a PhD in Rhetoric and Argumentation, Siân is currently the School Administrator of the Rudolf Steiner School of Ann Arbor. Before taking on this role, she spent the past eight years as the Rudolf Steiner High School Coordinator. Along with her Administrator role, she is also the Co-Director of the Waldorf Institute of Southeastern Michigan Teacher Training Institute and has thirty years of experience in Waldorf School Administration and Teaching in Ann Arbor and Minnesota.
