ESC Region 6 explains A-F Accountability at COCISD session

Laura Redden, Region 6 Education Service Center (ESC)'s school improvement lead in leadership and accountability, gave an in-depth training session on the state's new A-F Accountability system to COCISD administrators on Wednesday, Dec. 5th.

The Texas legislature's House Bill 22 has established three domains used to measure the academic performance of districts and campuses: Student Achievement, School Progress, and Closing the Gaps. A variety of student data is used within each domain to establish ratings from A-F.

The system has been controversial because many view the A-F rating as an oversimplification of a very complex issue.

Redden discussed the latest developments, data components, and metrics used for calculating the accountability rating by campus and district.

The A-F system is comprised of both state and federal guidelines, which have historically been separate in past accountability systems.
