

March winners of Classified Employee of the week

Camdenton R-III School District employees Nicki Calvert, Jan Dodge, Anita Long, and Andrea Rhoades are recognized for receiving the March Classified Employee of the Week.

Nicki Calvert is an administrative assistant at Hawthorn Elementary.

Whenever there is a problem, Nicki is always quick to help. She will work to find answers to problems she isn't asked to help solve. Nicki listens to you and helps in a way that is deeper and more meaningful than an average co-worker. She is always polite and full of sunshine.

Jan Dodge is a paraprofessional at Osage Beach Elementary. Jan is new to Camdenton School District, but is not shy about trying new things. She jumps in to help out as adult support with any student in need. Jan provides daily positive thoughts to each special education student as well. She has been a great addition to OBE!

Anita Long is a custodian at Osage Beach Elementary. Anita is always willing to do anything needed to improve OBE and keep the halls clean and organized! She goes out of her way! Anita loves the kids and in turn, they respect her and want to keep the classrooms clean so she does not have to do extra work!

Andrea Rhoades is the Volunteer Services/Community Relations Department administrative assistant. Andrea is such a bright light and positive person! She comes in with a smile on her face and ready to go. Andrea is a go to for all of our amazing volunteers and is always willing to help out when or wherever needed.

The Classified Employee of the Week is chosen through staff submissions. CCEA members recognize classified employees who have made a difference in their field.
