

SIOP Strategy

Welcome

by: Maritza Villanueva

I want to thank you SO much for your participation and your dedication to the SIOP training. I certainly learned a lot and had fun! Each week, I will be sending you a SIOP Strategy to consider for your lessons. We challenge you to try these new strategies. Sometimes it feels "risky" to try something new, but with intentional planning, we assure you these strategies will enhance the learning in your classroom and best support your ELLs.

Sentence Strips

Strategy for the week

Sentence starters are often referred to as "sentence frames," "sentence strips," or "sentence stems."

You can utilize sentence starters in lesson plans, on white board, power points, word walls and in your OBJECTIVES!

SIOP says, "Use sentence strips. This common technique can be used in a variety of ways at all grade levels."

How?

In reading/language arts, students can review events in a story by writing each event on a sentence strip, then sequencing the strip to retell the story. This technique can be applied in science to sequence steps in an experiment or in math to sequence the steps for problem solving."
