Brands and color are inextricably linked because color offers an instantaneous method for conveying meaning and message without words. Color is the visual component people remember most about a brand followed closely by shapes/symbols then numbers and finally words. People see color before they absorb anything else.

Many of the most recognizable brands in the world rely on color as a key factor in their instant recognition. The effective use of color is one of the most powerful tools to establish and communicate brand identity. Color needs to be used consistently in combination with our message in order for the brand to evoke immediate recognition and response.

When you think Archbishop Ryan, you think RED, BLACK and GOLD. Red and Black are the primary colors, and should be used on all brand applications, both internally and externally.

- At times, there may be an opportunity to expand the color palette or colors outside of the core palette. This is typically seen, for example, in alternate uniforms or military appreciation days. This is acceptable for special occasions, but not intended for long-term use. Also, color plays a large part in retail. There can be seasonal flexibility that may vary from our core palette.
- Any variation must be approved by the Archbishop Ryan Marketing Department.

Faith is more than just the Catholic roots that nourish the Ryan community. It’s a culture set in the Catholic tradition that flows into acceptance, inclusion, understanding, caring, and respect that your child will find here.

Throughout your child’s four years, beginning with the Freshman Opening Liturgy and culminating with the Kairos retreat, students will discover themselves and cultivate a healthy relationship with God.
A Faculty Invested in Your Child

The students at Archbishop Ryan are the center of everything we do. We will challenge, enlighten and engage them so that when they graduate they will have all the necessary tools to craft their future. Archbishop Ryan teachers are more than just classroom instructors. They are caring, involved mentors too. They attend our theater productions, athletic events and after-school initiatives. Our faculty invest in the lives of our students. When your child arrives on campus in September, they will invest in them too. They will take the time to help them find their way and develop their unique interests and abilities because they are deeply invested in their success.

Today’s colleges and universities, graduate schools and employers are looking for well-rounded, confident people who can think creatively, communicate and problem solve. They want candidates with skills like teamwork and leadership. Why? Because they have been under-emphasized in education. Not at Ryan! We weave these values into our coursework, extracurricular activities, advising sessions and campus life as a whole. We offer students a myriad of opportunities to learn and embrace these highly marketable skills. An Archbishop Ryan education for your child is a fulfilling education that will prepare them in every way for a successful career and meaningful life. That’s what sets your student apart. That’s the AR difference.

Unity Through Diversity

Multicultural and international students are an integral part of the AR community and campus life. With the rise of globalization, it is increasingly important to be able to work with people from different cultures and social groups. If students are exposed to diversity and learn cultural awareness in the classroom, it sets them up to flourish in the workforce. Our goal is to bring together students from different backgrounds who reflect the variety and richness of God’s kingdom.

A diverse school community brings to the lives of its members a fruitfulness that arises when people of different cultures, histories, and worldviews teach and learn from one another. As a diverse, co-educational institution, your child will experience multiple views, customs and perspectives that will aid them in their understanding of the complexities of the world in which they live.

At Ryan, we live our commitment to diversity in our everyday interactions, building it into our curriculum and institutional culture. This work contributes to our students’ success in the real world with individuals that are different from themselves.

When choosing a school, Sean was looking for a warm and welcoming environment that offered a diverse curriculum that would allow him to balance schoolwork and his love for athletics.

“My brother went to a private-independent high school and didn’t like it. When he transferred, I saw how the wrestling team welcomed him and that really stood out to me.”

Sean is a Sophomore in our Bonaventure Program and he says the program really helped him improve his student experience by honing in on his time management, writing, and study skills. “Mrs. Dougherty is the best. She’s helped me with everything. She stays on top of me and makes sure I’m successful. I use our study skills binder in every class and it really helps keep me organized.”

Sean’s always been active in school. At St. Christopher School, he was a Peer Helper and a part of the Young Heroes Club where he worked to combat Cyber Bullying. At Ryan, he’s involved in wrestling and track. The Bonaventure Program not only helps Sean in class but also helps him stay focused in the wrestling ring.

“I really love it here. It’s so much fun!”

THE BONAVENTURE PROGRAM
FOR STUDENTS WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES AT ARCHBISHOP RYAN HIGH SCHOOL

The Bonaventure Program is one of only two state accredited programs in the Archdiocese of Philadelphia for students with learning disabilities. Our program works in cooperation with students, faculty, staff, and the campus community to promote a universally designed environment and to ensure that our school’s resources are equally available to all students.

In the Bonaventure Program, a learning strategies approach is used. The goal is for students with learning disabilities to develop study skills that can be integrated and utilized throughout the curriculum. The topics include attention, concentration, organization, memorization, note-taking, and test-taking techniques.

Students are rostered into standard high school classes for all but one period each day. During this “resource” period, the program instructor meets with the student and adaptations are developed through consultation with the program and subject-area instructors.

The student to instructor ratio in the Bonaventure Program is 1:3.
