Prom, to most, is a pivotal turning point in a student's life. It's a place where friends can join together and make memories for years to come. For Fairfield High School seniors, Saturday, May 11, will be their last big moment in high school before graduation.

And for some seniors? It's potentially even a bigger moment.

On Tuesday, FHS announced its 2019 prom court. The candidates to be prom queen are Paola Alcantara, KK Begley, Amberly Brelsford, Ariana Copenhaver, Kylee Cortright, Mary Mousa and Kamiah Vickers. Candidates for prom king are: Jackie Cheng, Zach Edwards, Josh Lives, Howie Nguyen, Hung Nguyen, Kelvin Prom and Nabel Shteivi.

They will be introduced to the student body on Friday during a 7th-bell pep rally in the high school arena.

For prom queen candidate Kamiah Vickers, she's most excited to "spend time with (my friends) and have one last final hurrah."

How was the prom court selected? During a recent homeroom bell, seniors were given a complete list of the Class of 2019 and were asked to nominate five males and five females. From that list, the court was selected. The two recipients of the largest number of nominations will be tapped as king and queen.

Said Kelvin Prom: "(My friends) mostly wanted me to (run) because my last name is 'Prom.'"

The winner of the titles queen and king will be announced at about 10 p.m. during the dance, which is being held 8-11 p.m. at the Sharonville Convention Center.

To many on the court at Fairfield High School, prom is more about one last time with friends, despite being candidates to be king and queen. Nabil Shteivi sums up all his excitement with, "(It's) just being all together for one last dance."
