Dear Parents,

I hope this finds you all healthy and ready for the latest adventure that has been presented to us. I am writing to you in this time of uncertainty to assure you that although we will not be in school with your children, we will be available to you via email with any questions/concerns you may have. The case managers will be touching base with you on a weekly basis and teachers (special and regular education) will be available through their Google classrooms and via email. We are in uncharted waters but rest assured that we all know how to swim.

For those students who receive therapies, the therapists will be reaching out to you to provide you with activities you can do at home while school is closed. We will be providing compensatory services once we are all back to school. In the meantime therapists will also reach out to you weekly to answer any questions or to provide guidance and suggestions.

The following email addresses may be helpful to you:
