Social Media & Your School

Social Media can be a great tool to keep you connected with your school community. As a parent/guardian, you can be a positive role model by demonstrating respectful and responsible behaviors when communicating with and about your child's school online.

Before you post, ask yourself:

- Am I being a good role model?
- Is this information relevant, helpful, and positive?
  - Am I making a situation worse?
  - Will this information upset or embarrass the school or an individual?
  - Will this information reflect badly on me?

Feedback from parents and the community is important, but if you have a concern, rather than go online, speak directly to your child's teacher or principal.
