Personal problems are a part of all our lives. For those problems that will not go away on their own, there is confidential outside assistance with your Employee Assistance Program (EAP).

How EAP helps
Your Employee Assistance Program is an employer sponsored program, utilizing counselors who specialize in the assessment of personal problems.

EAP deals with human problems...the kind that affect your personal well-being or ability to perform your job.

How EAP works
The counseling process begins with your phone call. The self-referral, discussion and resolution of your problem will remain confidential.

Your supervisor may encourage the use of EAP if personal problems begin to affect work performance. In all cases, EAP counselors are subject to federal confidentiality laws.

What EAP costs
Your Employee Assistance Program is a benefit provided by your employer, at no cost to you. If, however, additional resources are required to help in your problem, the financial responsibility is yours.

What EAP can help with
Your organization cares about its employees and recognizes that job performance can be affected by problems unrelated to work. These problem areas may include marital difficulties, school stress, family problems, financial concerns, legal matters, emotional difficulties, health issues, or problems caused by drug or alcohol abuse/dependency.

Services are available 365 days a year. EAP is a program of PRECEDENCE, Inc.
