

District 4 celebrates 100th Day of School

Addison School District 4 students celebrated the 100th day of school this past week.

This time-honored tradition faced some challenges this year, with four emergency weather days (snow days!) slowing down the count to the magic number.

But no matter when they marked the day, a common theme was "100

Days Smarter," which is something to celebrate.

Teachers use this benchmark to help students get excited about learning in a wide variety of ways. Dressing up to look like a 100-year-old person, playing counting games, creating art projects, and carrying 100-item posters in parades were all part of the fun and learning.

These Lincoln School first graders in Mrs. Bain's class dressed up as their 100-year-old selves. Curlers, glasses, canes, and robes were among the props used to create the illusion. Some of them look pretty convincing.

Fullerton School 1st graders who paraded through the school, carrying posters, wearing 100 Day hats, paper chains, and glasses, and chanting "Hip, hip, hooray, it's our 100th day!" In the gym, the students counted off to 100, while family members observed and snapped pictures.

Dressed up themselves, these Fullerton first graders carried posters into the gym at the end of their parade through the hallways of the to celebrate the 100th Day of School. The day had to be postponed a few days, due to the recent snow days!

SUBMITTED PHOTOS The Independent

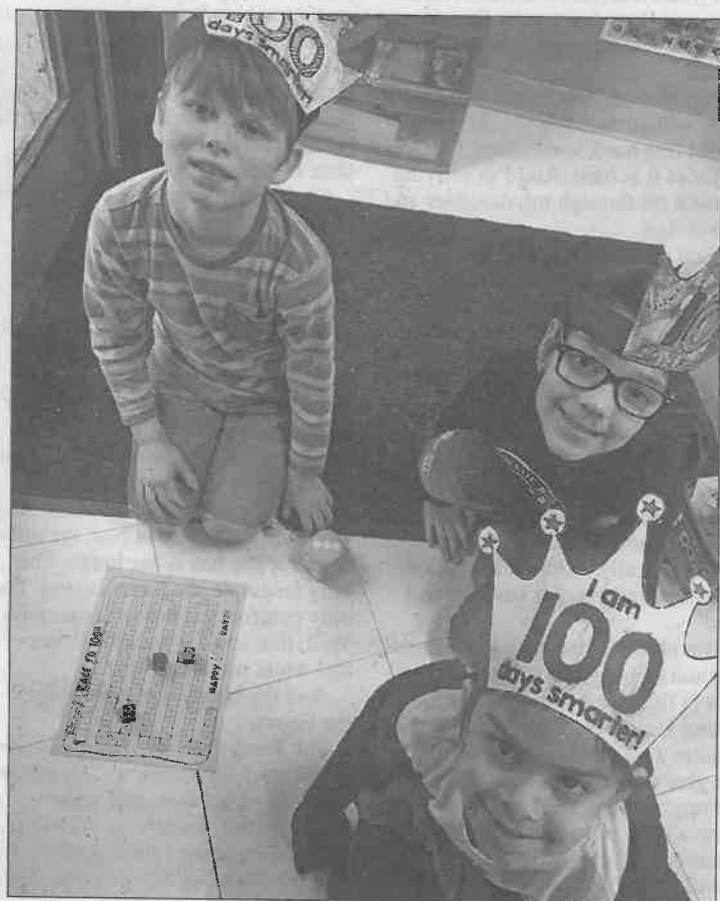

SUBMITTED PHOTO Addison Independent

We're 100 days smarter

Marking the 100th Day of School is Mrs. McQuillen's 2nd grade class at Lake Park School, who celebrated with decorations, noise-makers, and party hats. All of the schools in District 4 celebrated the 100th Day, which was postponed a few days due to the recent snow days! More photos inside this issue.

The Independent - Thursday, Feb. 14, 2019

SUBMITTED PHOTO Addison Independent

100 days smarter

Lake Park first graders wear "I'm 100 days smarter" hats while playing a "Race to 100" game. It was all part of the celebration of the 100th day of school.